What is interesting about the K8s Release Team

Decision Making

KubeCon

CloudNativeCon

North America 2019

- Lots of autonomy to make decisions
- Decision making is transparent

Few things block a K8s release

KubeCon

CloudNativeCon

North America 2019

- Team is very effective at risk management
- At risk items often de-scoped and bumped
 - During 1.15 most of these decisions were made by individuals

Iterating every release cycle: Shadow Program

KubeCon

CloudNativeCon

North America 2019

- When I joined (1.13) becoming a shadow was commenting on a GitHub Issue
- 1.14 introduced a survey for shadows to volunteer

I'd be very interested to shadow CI signal (and/or any other team that needs people, of course; but do have a soft spot for CI :)).

Section 1 of 3

1.15 Release Team Shadow Application

Thank you for volunteering for the Kubernetes 1.15 Release Team!

This questionnaire is meant to learn a little bit more about you, your journey with Kubernetes, your understanding of the Release Team processes and procedures, as well as to determine if you're a good fit for the current Release Team.

Please note that you are expected to be inexperienced in some areas, as a role shadow is a mentorship opportunity.

Participation in the Release Team can include somewhat open-ended expectations. We never know what blocking/critical issue may come up at what point during the release cycle. On a rare occasion this may mean we each make some personal sacrifice to check in on a status or show up at a meeting to give or receive information. The team of leads and shadows must be flexible and pragmatic in addressing these. The Release Team Lead will endeavor to make sure any such inconveniences do not unfairly hit individuals or specific timezones.

Before proceeding further, you must browse and read the relevant Role Handbooks: <https://github.com/kubernetes/sig-release/tree/master/release-team/role-handbooks>

Responses to this application are shared only with leadership of SIG-Release and the current Release Team, and are deleted after the release cycle is over.

Hey folks - I've gone through and pinged all issues open in kubernetes/enhancements to check on plans for 1.14 except for issues that were stale ... - if you notice an issue targeted for 1.14 is missing please let me know.
